

Next steps

Before we conclude, allow me to express my gratitude once again to our speakers, as well as to the media partners who are supporting us in this project: VaccinesToday and TrendSanità-Policy and procurement in healthcare. A special thanks goes out to all our colleagues who have contributed to the success of this initiative, and to the companies that support our VaccinAction project: GSK, Johnson & Johnson, MSD, Pfizer, Sanofi.

Our communication campaign on adult vaccination, which will be available in multiple languages, will soon launch on Twitter and Facebook. Additionally, our next training session is scheduled for November, coinciding with the "World Antimicrobial Awareness Week." It will focus on the correlations between vaccination policies and the fight against antimicrobial resistance. As always, we will ensure timely updates.

I'd like to draw your attention to an upcoming event that you won't want to miss:

As a member of the Steering Group on Influenza Vaccination, we are glad to invite you to join the EU Flu Day 2023. The event will take place on the 11 October at the European Parliament and web-streamed between 16:30 and 18:00 CEST. For the occasion, the Steering Group will present a set of actionable Policy Recommendations, outlining how European and national policymakers can empower healthcare professionals for everyone's protection. More details in our website.

Last but not least, we are also glad to inform you that is started our European tour titled “Civil Society promoting vaccination across the life-course” with the first initiative planned on 26 of September in Spain followed by initiatives in France (27) and in Italy (25 October). As usual, more details in our website.

That's all for today. Thank you once again for joining us, and have a great evening!
